CHEY-CAST BULLETS

ALWAYS ON TARGET

Chey-Cast Bullets is a family owned business of individuals that have been shooting, casting bullets, and reloading for over 48 years. We have been commercially selling bullets since its inception in 2001. We started casting bullets because of the lack of supply of cast bullets and the high cost of shipping. We have been shooting Cowboy Action Shooting (CAS) matches since 1995 and got tired of paying as much for shipping as for bullets. So we started our own manufacturing and retail Bullet Company.

The Chey-Cast family has participated in Cowboy Action, Steel Challenge, Defensive Pistol, IDPA, NRA Action Pistol, Silhouettes, 22 Precision and bench rest matches, just to name a few. Beside all of that fun we are avid hunters and fishermen, as well as members of SASS, NRA, Ducks Unlimited, NSSF, A Girl and A Gun, Armed Women America, and the Elk Foundation.

We are proud to have sponsored a variety of shooting sports club matches throughout the years and look forward to continuing our support of Shooting Sports organizations.

We have been at the same location in Cheyenne, Wyoming, for the past 40 years and plan to be here for many more years serving your bullet needs. Since this is a family business many of our children, grandchildren and friends participate in the success of our business. Our most enjoyable shooting sport is Cowboy Action Shooting. Hank is a Life member of SASS. His expertise includes having been a local club president, State and Regional Match Director, Territorial Governor and is a SASS Regulator. Hank and Dee are known as Slowpoke WY (SASS#5164) and Dazee Bristol (SASS#10816). Recently our grandson Mike Thrush aka Waterboy (SASS#25286) has become our main representative at SASS matches around the country. Mike is also our manufacturing supervisor.

The Second Amendment of the United States Constitution reads: "A well regulated Militia, being necessary to the security of a free State, the right of the people to keep and bear Arms, shall not be infringed."

Some excerpts from an article written by James House for The Illinois Shooter winter 2020-2021, a publication of the Illinois State Rifle Association

<https://www.isra.org>

Although jacketed, plated, and solid copper bullets are popular, cast bullets are still chosen for a great deal of shooting. Cast bullets may be the logical choice in some cases. With the dramatic improvement in polymers, cast bullets that have been given a polymer coating are entirely practical. Several companies produce such bullets for people who load their own ammunition. In some cases, the coating is a clear material; in others, the coating has a color. Cast Performance Bullet Company offers several types of bullets with a clear polymer coating. Chey- Cast Bullets of Cheyenne, Wyoming, offers an extensive line of cast bullets that are coated with HI-TEK Supercoat®. Included are bullets that span the spectrum from 115 grains for loading 9mm caliber handguns to those that weigh 400 grains and are of .45 or .50 caliber. The Chey-Cast line includes a greater selection of bullets for use in handguns, as would be expected because of the lower velocity of bullets fired from handguns. However, there is also a very nice 165-grain bullet in a .308 caliber for use in cartridges, such as the .30-30 Winchester. Several coated bullets are also offered in .458 diameter because numerous rifles are available in that caliber, especially older designs of the lever-action or single-shot variety.

Chey-Cast bullets are made of a very hard alloy that consists of 92% lead, 6% antimony, and 2% tin. As a result of the coating and the hardness, leading of barrels and airborne lead are virtually eliminated. However, the bullets behave much as if they were full metal jacketed types (solids) with little or no expansion on impact with soft targets. In larger calibers, they are still effective and can be used for some hunting.

Chey-Cast bullets are available in lots of 500 or 1,000 except for heavy bullets in .45 and .50 calibers, which are available in lots of 250. One very nice service offered by Chey-Cast is that a customer can order a one-or two-pound sample of any of the bullets, except for the heavy bullets in large calibers. Chey- Cast bullets can be found on the internet at cheycastbullets.com and can be contacted at (307)630-0954. Moreover, free shipping is provided for orders over $150. The people at Chey- Cast Bullets are serious shooters who support several organizations in the shooting sports, and they have been marketing bullets commercially for about 20 years. My wife and I shoot a lot of .38 Special ammunition, and much of it is loaded with Chey- Cast bullets. Based on my experience, their cast bullets are of very high quality.

Chey-Cast would like to thank Jim House and Richard Vaughan for such a fine article about "Improving the Original Bullet Type".

Chey-Cast offers a wide variety of cast bullets with HI-TEK Supercoat, including all popular handgun calibers and some rifle calibers.

"I have decided to shoot Chey Cast bullets for several reasons. I have known Hank for many years and like him personally. He produces a high quality hard cast bullet which has a good reputation for consistency and quality at a fair price. He produces his bullets with the Hi Tek Super-coat process which is the best coating process I am aware of. This coating totally encapsulates the bullet which reduces my exposure to lead from fired rounds and also from handling bullets while reloading. It replaces bullet lube which gums up my reloading equipment and firearms."

HARD-CAST BULLETS with HI-TEK SUPERCOAT BULLET COATING

We use a unique heat-set "HI-TEK Supercoat". The "HI-TEK Supercoat" Bullet Coating totally encapsulates the lead projectiles and replaces standard wax lube. Our bullets are "Hard-Cast." Hard cast bullets are just that: harder, 16 to 18 Brinell. We use a 92% Lead/6% Antimony/2% Tin bullet alloy for casting all bullets. We buy our bullet alloy directly from a local foundry that has the knowledge, equipment and experience to manufacture bullet alloy to exacting specifications. "HI-TEK Supercoat" bullets are safe to shoot indoors and your dies will remain clean during the reloading process. Coated bullets produce higher velocities. The coating gives off no toxic or gassing or particulate matter when fired. The coating is absolutely non-abrasive and contains no PTFE or MOLY. There is no wax lube to gum up your loading dies. The end result is cleaner air, cleaner hands, cleaner reloading equipment and cleaner guns. We are now selling most of our bullets in 500 count boxes. You will also receive FREE shipping on your order of the Bullet Bundle Box (one box of the same bullet from 58 to 68 pounds). Sample packs are either 1 or 2 pounds (for approximate bullet count divide 7,000 by the bullet grain for 1 pound or 14,000 for the 2 pound).
